Keeping Our Community Powered

As we were putting away our holiday lights and thinking back on how beautiful Laurinburg is during the holidays, I found myself thinking about how having reliable electric service is such a big part of the holidays and of our everyday lives. And how it's something we sometimes take for granted. Often, we don't think about electricity until a storm or a car accident or some other disaster knocks out the power.

Our electricity in Laurinburg is so incredibly reliable, it's easy to not notice and to not think about the work that goes into that reliability.

Let me throw some data at you: In Laurinburg, based on 2022 numbers, we averaged less than one power outage a year per customer. And when our power does go out, it's only for an average of about 20 minutes. That's better than the averages of all the public power communities across the state, and it's much better than North Carolina's investor-owned utilities and co-ops.

That reliability is one of the benefits of us living in a public power community—that is, a City that owns and operates its electric system.

Another benefit is that our electric utility's employees—the lineworkers, customer service representatives, and other specialists—they're all employees of the City. They work hard to keep our lights on because they live here too.

If we have a storm or other disaster that knocks out our power in the middle of the night, the lineworkers who live here in Laurinburg are the ones getting out of their beds and heading out in the bucket trucks to fix what's wrong and get our lights and heat back on and our lives back to normal.

And if our system has extensive damage, lineworkers in public power communities around the state and the country are standing by to lend a hand to be sure our power gets restored as quickly and safely as possible.

Public power really is local people working together to meet local needs. I'm so proud and grateful that Laurinburg is a public power community. And I can't thank the people enough who work so hard to keep Laurinburg powered.

Leaves and Limbs...

The Sanitation Department has begun their peak season for collecting leaves and limbs within the City of Laurinburg. As a reminder, leaves are collected loose at the curb by city vacuum trucks. Therefore, it is very important to keep leaves separated from all other types of debris. Please do not rake your leaves into the street, do not put leaves in any type of container (must be loose), and always place leaves in an easily accessible area away from vehicles or other obstructions. Please place your limbs and other debris in a separate pile. They will be picked up by a different type of city truck. The timeliness of collection will depend on the volume of leaves set out for collection. During peak times, collection intervals could be longer than usual. Thank you for your cooperation and patience.
